

Inflection Point Announces Strategic Partnership with Coveo

Columbia, Md., April 14, 2010 – Inflection Point Systems, providing enterprise class software product development to power innovation, today announced that it has signed a strategic partnership agreement with Coveo, a leading provider of enterprise search and information access solutions for the enterprise.

“Coveo is one of the leading enterprise search platforms in the market, and we welcome the opportunity to become a technology partner with them”, said Carlos Montemayor, CEO of Inflection Point. “Coveo’s sophisticated search technology allows global companies to dynamically access, analyze and leverage vast amounts of information and knowledge. Inflection Point has acquired an intimate knowledge of the Coveo platform and is looking forward to helping our clients gain a competitive advantage by leveraging the business benefits it offers.”

Inflection Point is a world-class software consulting and product development company that helps companies in all stages, from start-ups to mature businesses, turn their innovative ideas into superbly-executed software applications. Inflection Point runs on the nearshore outsourcing model, which allows domestic companies to overcome the barriers associated with traditional outsourcing models to offer uncompromised quality at an exceptional value. With headquarters in Columbia, Md., and a software engineering center in Monterrey, Mexico, Inflection Point offers the geographic proximity necessary to facilitate easy communication and collaboration.

“We are pleased to partner with Inflection Point and look forward to collaborating with them to help customers better leverage their content management and knowledge ecosystems and generate more return from their information assets,” said Fred Harding, SVP Alliances, Coveo. “Both organizations share a commitment to providing customers with technology and services that generate business benefits, cost savings, and meaningful ROI. Inflection Point’s presence in the US and Latin America complements the growth of our global partner ecosystem.”

About Coveo

Coveo is a leader in enterprise search-powered solutions. The Coveo Enterprise Search Platform and Customer Information Access solutions help organizations generate value from information and knowledge stored across the enterprise, in virtually any system, whether they reside in the cloud or on enterprise servers—all without moving data. Companies can also get started at no cost, with Coveo Espresso, a free, entry-level enterprise search solution.

With Coveo's unified indexing technology, companies gain an alternative to expensive system upgrades and integrations, and are able to harvest existing IT infrastructure while providing actionable insight into information and knowledge. Coveo helps companies to Stop Moving Data™ by combining structured and unstructured data from virtually any enterprise system into a central index, which is then accessed securely to drive more value through multiple business processes.
